FRANK MAYO IN "THE GIRL IN NO. 29" AT THE UTAH

Screen plays are classed usually as dramas, comedies and melodramas, but the management at the Utah theater promises a blend of all three in "The Girl in Number 29," a Universal production starring Frank Mayo, which is to be shown tonight.

Frank Mayo appears in this story as Laurie Devon, a young man of wealth, who has collaborated with a friend, Rodney Bangs, in the writing of a play. When it proves a success he is satisfied to rest on his laurels. His friend, more ambitious, vainly attempts to interest him in the writing of other stage stories. Rodney finally enlists the services of Devon's sister, and together they plan to put a thrill into Laurie's life.

One morning Laurie sees in his mirror the reflection of a young girl. She is holding a pistol at her head, apparently bent on suicide. Devon rushes to the adjacent building, takes possession of the weapon, and offers to aid the girl. She intimates that he is pursued by an enemy who is driven to self-destruction. Then Laurie finds himself in the midst of a maelstrom of exciting adventures. Just when the entire story threatens to become a tragedy, a curious turn of affairs transforms it into a delightful comedy.

Elizabeth Jordan's novel, "The Girl in the Mirror," is the basis for this photoplay, which was directed by Jack Ford. In it Frank Mayo is supported by Claire Anderson, Elinor Fair, Harry Hilliard, Robert Bolder, Arthur Hoyt, Ray Ripley and Bull Montana.

DIVORCE DECREE ASKED BY BOTH

Charges and Counter Charges Feature Suit Opening in Pratt's Court

Unusual allegations form the basis of a divorce suit between J. Wilford Cawley and Floretta Cawley, which opened in the district court this morning before Judge A. E. Pratt. Mr. Cawley charges that his wife refused to wear his wedding ring while he was serving in the army and that at times while he was away, she allowed men to "put their arms around her waist."

"Have Good Time."
In a cross-examination Mrs. Cawley alleges that her husband urged her to "have good times" as he was enjoying himself in the service, and that he failed to provide for her support and told her and others that he "married her on a bet."

Mrs. Cawley alleges that his wife treated him cruelly and took off the wedding ring after he entered the service and posed as a single woman. She was frequently seen, he charges, in the company of men of questionable character and on February 22, 1919, she was discovered in a secluded booth in a public dance hall with a man, not her husband, who had his arm around her, the complaint alleges.

It is further alleged by Mr. Cawley that his wife told others she was through with him, she did not love him and could not live with him after his return from the service. He claims she left Ogden before he arrived home after discharge and there by caused him great mental distress and suffering. He asks the court to dissolve the matrimonial bonds.

Answers Husband
In answer to her husband's charges Mrs. Cawley alleges that during the month of June 1918 when her husband was in the army and returned home on a leave of absence, he lost her wedding ring and promised to buy her another, but failed to do so. She claims that she purchased another ring with her own money and wore it at all times.

Mrs. Cawley further alleges that during her husband's absence, she was for a time employed by a motion picture company in and about Ogden and she wrote and advised her husband of her new employment. He answered, she declares, by congratulating her and expressed the hope that she would become a great motion picture star.

On many occasions, she declares, her husband wrote her urging her to have a good time and telling of the good times he was having.

Failed To Write
Later, according to the allegations, her husband failed to write to her for months and also failed to provide means of support and the allotment provided by the government to dependants. She declared that he told her he did not love her and told her and others that he only married her "on a bet."

Mrs. Cawley stated that her maiden name was Reta Ruby and asks the court to award her alimony and that she be granted a divorce upon her counter claim.

The couple were married May 15, 1917.

MRS. FISKE IS WELL RECEIVED

Charming Story of Love and Tangles Told in "Miss Nelly of N'Orleans"

The World Almanac says that Minnie Madden Fiske was born 55 years ago in the city of New Orleans. Maybe it is the fact that New Orleans is her birthplace, which accounts for the charm with which Mrs. Fiske depicts her role of "Miss Nelly of N'Orleans," which opened at the Ogden theaters last night.

A delightful little love story, with many humorous complications, much good acting and lots of creole dialect, is told amid a setting depicting an old-fashioned New Orleans garden.

Mrs. Fiske is Miss Nelly, growing old in years but not in spirit. She comes home from Paris after many years to find her niece is engaged to the son of the man who had jilted her many years ago. The father is as much opposed to the match as is Miss Nelly. How Miss Nelly changes her mind, how she and her niece happily together and also "lands" her former sweetheart, is told in a most interesting manner as the play proceeds.

Mrs. Fiske is the star of the play, but she by no means usurps all honors. The cast is not a large one, but it is made up of splendid actors. Among these are Dorothy Day as Delphine, Hamilton Revelle as Georges Durand, Joseph Greene as Father Andre and Victor Benoit as Felix Durand.

There is so much creole idiom and distinctive speech that some of the passages were unintelligible to many in the audience, but this could not detract from the interest in the play, which also contained much fine music.

Sues for Back Alimony Amount to Over $3000

Suit to recover $3275 alleged to be due as alimony, has been filed in the district court by Ada Muller against William F. Muller. The complaint charges that the couple were married in Ogden, September 3, 1903, and that a divorce was granted two years ago at Grand Junction, Col., awarding the plaintiff alimony.

Mrs. Muller, who is now residing at Pueblo, Colo., alleges that she has received no money as alimony since the divorce, from her husband who lives in Ogden.

PRICE-SLASHING NOT FOR OGDEN

Merchants Agree That Some Articles Have Declined, But Movement Not General

Advertisements in dry goods store windows and the newspapers during the last few days has acquainted the public with a considerable reduction in the price of certain lines of clothing. On inquiry this morning a Standard-Examiner reporter learned from leading merchants of Ogden that there is no kind of a "move" on. All that is happening is that a natural depression is beginning to effect certain lines of goods, they said.

Silk Goes Down
Silk can now be bought at a reduction of from 25 to 40 per cent on prices being asked two weeks ago owing to the fact that financial stringency in Japan has cut down the cost of raw silk. This is coupled with the interesting fact that government investigation of wild speculation by a class of profiteers on the silk market, and the resolve of the federal reserve banking system to allow no more money to flow to support of such speculation, has brought down the price of silk to the retailer and he has taken immediate advantage of passing the relief on to the general public.

Little Change
As regards cottons, woolsens, and dress goods generally, there is no change. There is still a scarcity of the articles due chiefly to decreased production and the price of these goods is likely to be considerably higher in a short time. "Cotton goods that used to cost us 10 cents a yard are quoted for fall delivery at 69 cents now," said one merchant this morning, "and in the lines just mentioned we see no possibility of decrease, but rather of an upward trend."

Break Even
One dealer in men's wearing apparel said, "We are selling men's suits at a loss and we think we are acting wisely in reducing the cost of such suits. To say that the reduction in prices is due to a larger supply, and a decrease in prices quoted by the wholesale houses to us is not true. We have made up our minds to be willing to lose money in one department and hope that we will break even."
